CONG. SUPPER AT UNITED CHURCH SEES BIG GATHERING

When the committee of "mere men" was appointed to arrange for the congregational supper at the United church which was held on Thursday last, grave misgivings were felt by most of the fair sex as to the ultimate outcome of such a flagrant usurpation of their prerogative, but the splendid spread which graced the tables, the manner of the "set-up" the dainty silver and napery, and above all the real hot scalloped potatoes, baked beans and coffee, proved that other than the everyday occupations of life can be entered into with zest, and success along "other lines" than their own can be attained by the hard-headed sex when their minds are made up to accomplish a thing.

At the close of the "rats," an enjoyable round table talk was indulged in. Rev. G. Pybus, the pastor acting as chairman; while Rev. Mr. Elliott of Irma addressed the gathering on the usefulness of Union in its broadest sense.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. W. Wilson of Edmonton who in a real spirited address, aimed the aims and objects of the new United church along the lines of its missionary endeavors, and showed quite plainly that the organization was out to accomplish more, if possible than the two old churches did together, and thus prove that "union is strength."

During the evening Mr. F. Stott (accompanied by Mrs. Telford) gave "Absent" as a cornet solo, and Mrs. Telford and Mrs. Pybus gave a delightful piano duet.

The committee in charge consisted of Messrs W. Hamiltonford, chairman, J. Dawson, J. Telford, E. Erickson and H. Kemp and they deserve to express thanks to all their willing helpers in achieving the success the supper proved.

The fire laddies of our town, under the command of Fire-chief Richardson and ably assisted by Councillor McI. Fraser, chairman of the Fire Committee of the Town Council and many others sure pulled off a big success with their first annual dance at the theatre last week.

No doubt that the next function will be looked forward to with zest.

TWO MEN IN LIFE & DEATH STRUGGLE PROVIDE BIG THRILL IN ELITE FEATURE

Jim Kent an inventor of a carburetor which makes his car sure winner in the coming $5,000 road race, supports his widowed mother by working as "human fly" on the skeleton skyscraper being built by John Howard Millionaire.

By a sensational rescue in mid-air swung from a crane, Jim gains Howard's admiration and his daughter's love. But Howard favors one of the underworld who poses as a broker. Howard tells Jim "bravely that if he can come back in thirty days and show $5,000 cash, he'll talk to him."

Jim, happy figures he has the race and Doris clinched. But the night before the race, Jim is kidnapped by Trask's gang.

At dawn, by superhuman effort, Jim frees himself and overpowers the guard. A head-breaking wall follows till "The Shadow" enters with the dungeon keys and is overpowered. Jim escapes, reaches his garage, finds the car won't run. A missing battery is quickly replaced then with his faithful negro, mechanic Grove, races thirty miles to the start of the race.

A wild drive, weaving through the traffic at a mile a minute; challenging danger by squeezing through between two express trains approaching each other; a ten-foot leap from the ship onto the ferry-bank, just pulling out, he passes the starter's flag as it drops after Doris has given him up.

The ensuing race is a cyclone. Jim creeps up to fourth, third, second. As he shoots to first place, "The Shadow" in ambush punctures his gas tank with a shot. The exhaust flame turns into a cyclone of flame. Jim rushes on to a railroad water tower, puts it on wheels on Trask's minions in a black death-car try to crowd Jim off the road but are themselves wrecked as Jim leads into homestretch. The horrified spectators see a golden-haired child toddle squarely across his track. Trask's minion, Jim, his eyes fixed on his machine loses the race.

Jim awakes in a hospital, Trask's minions frame him. He's doped when Doris, escorted by Trask, visits him and Doris is persuaded that "Weeping Wanda," whom he finds kneeling by the bedside is Jim's secret sweetheart.

Doris accepts Trask. Jim leaves the hospital on the wedding day with a note to save her. Jim rushes on to a street tunnel, dynamite to trap him into Howard's skeleton skyscraper. Jim, pursued by the gang out onto a beam on the twentieth floor fights for life and death. Almost overpowered a most crashed to the sidewalk below he grabs a cable to the opposite house just as the minister is wedding Doris to Trask.

"The Shadow" cuts the cable; Jim catches it as he falls and like a human pendulum is hurled against the Howard house and crashes through a window the foot of the altar, breaking up the ceremony as detectives appear and arrest Trask, on whom "Weeping Wanda" has "squealed" for murder.

Jim marries Doris on the spot though hardly dressed for the occasion.

And all of this story is shown on Friday and Saturday next at the theatre in the big feature film "The Cyclone Rider," at Regular Prices.

INTEREST SHOWN IN MAYFIELD DISTRICT IN MUNICIPAL HOSP.

At the invitation of the residents of the Mayfield school district the Board of Trade's hospital committee journeyed last night to that center on Thursday evening last and to a well-attended meeting gave a full outline of the proposed municipal hospital scheme, and explained the advantages of such an institution.

Mr. E. Symes, of Battleview, who is a member of the hospital board of the Vermilion Municipal Hospital district was also present, and answered very capably and most thoroughly the many questions put to him as to the workings and costs of such an institution as the one he represented.

That gentleman also admitted that he had been against the Vermilion hospital scheme, but like his many neighbors had later found that the wrong scheme he carried out if at all possible feeling that it would finally prove to be an inexpensive yet most efficient health insurance for the district at large.

A full discussion, in which practically everyone present took part occupied an hour or so, and it was decided at the close that petition be circulated throughout that territory.

Councillor W. Fox was an efficient chairman of the meeting, while Messrs J. McLeod, W. Bowen and J. Cuthbertson drove out from town to represent the Board of Trade.

QUEEN TAKEN TO LAST RESTING PLACE AT WINDSOR CASTLE

WOLFERTON, Eng. The body of Britain's loved Queen Mother Alexandra started on its journey today, the end of which is a resting place beside her late husband, King Edward, in the Royal Chambers of the dead at Windsor. Through avenues of larches, beeches and pines, the casket bearing all that is mortal of the "sea-kings" daughter from over the sea" was conveyed this afternoon from Sandringham estate to the royal station here for entombment for London.

There tomorrow Britain will honor its dead without the outward show of martial ceremony, and with the inward spirit of reverence for a regal woman who had touched the hearts of the humble with the beauty of her life.

POOL MAY BUILD ELEVATOR LINE U.G.G. WON'T SELL

WINNIPEG, Refusal of the United Grain Growers to sell its elevators has resulted in an immediate policy of building new elevators by the consolidated wheat pools. It is said today that the fight in the old farmers' company over the surrender to the pool is to be the bitterest in its history. The company's solicitor called in at the moment advised the delegates that they could surrender the elevator only by votes of the members and not by shareholders' delegates' vote.

An effort of the Alberta local to have President Cregar censured for his attitude on the New Grain Act, as a member of parliament, is declared to forecast concerted effort to have him declared illegal.

At the last session of parliament Mr. Cregar opposed this policy, as the U.G.G. has mining facilities. A whole review of the Grain Act, it is said, will be forced at this session in the interest of pool members. They especially want the power to name the terminal house to which consigned grain may be diverted.

A money by law was submitted to the burgesses of Drumheller last week and out of 400 citizens entitled to vote thereon only 30 exercised their franchise. This sad lack of interest in municipal affairs is what tries the patience of those elected to conduct civic government.

THE NAVY LEAGUE OF ALBERTA

Fred Cooke, who managed to gather some thirty dollars to add to the funds; Alberta having raised about one half its quota to date.

Amendments Made To The Bankruptcy Act

Amendments to the Bankruptcy Act passed at the last session of Parliament became effective November 1. One of the most important of their authorizes provincial governments to appoint their own officials as custodians or trustees in cases of persons engaged solely in farming. This amendment is of particular importance to Western Canada, where it is said difficulty was experienced in obtaining persons to act as custodians in farmers' assignments. The amendment provides that provincial officers appointed to act as custodians or trustees are entitled to no remuneration.

Another important amendment which also bears on assignments by farmers is that which has to do with the keeping of books and continuing in business after insolvency. Under the old act persons who had failed to keep books, or who continued in business after insolvency were not entitled to a discharge. It was represented that farmers did not keep books and also that while a farmer might be insolvent as the result of a crop failure he must continue in business. The amendment provides that the old act shall not apply to any assignor who at the time of the authorized assignment has engaged solely in farming. A third change gives the Minister of Justice power to authorize district court or other judges to administer the act.

DRIVE FOR BUDGET FUND

Throughout the Dominion a campaign is now under way to raise $2,000,000 for the educational mission and benevolent work of the United Church of Canada. The sum aimed at combines the former annual budget of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches, and is to be collected the end of March, 31st.

Of the total amount more than two thirds is to be used for mission and hospital work in Canada and foreign lands.

Alberta's share in this fund has been placed at $100,000 and a drive to raise the amount is being put on in all parts of the province by laymen's canvassing teams. The campaign has been carefully organized, and much interest is being shown in it all over Canada.

DR. McCOLLUM ON EGGS

Dr. McCollum, a noted scientist, believes that the real reason why the men of China and Japan are small in stature is that their diet has been faulty, lacking mainly in eggs.

In fact the Doctor thinks that differences both in bodily and mental equipment are due to diet rather than race. The use of eggs in a diet has been shown to be probably saved them from extinction; but they do not use sufficient of the hen

Hygiene Committee Writes About Heredity

By Dr. C. M. Hinks, Medical Director, Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene.

All bad mental traits are by means due to bad heredity.

When parents say "Tommy inherits his father's bad temper," they should modify the remark by saying that "Perhaps, Tommy inherits his father's exhibition of bad temper."

Too often parents believe that an inheritance has given their children bad characteristics. The mother is nervous the father is given to tempestuous fits of anger and they think the children inherit these qualities. Mental traits to experts say are certainly developed and often controlled by environment.

Of lightning, but a noted babies show fear as he has never seen babies show fear at a sudden flash of light. The loud crash of thunder frightens them but not the brilliant light alone. Fear can be taught, so can courage.

Such environment plays such a big part in the acquisition of good mental habits that it is readily understood that the right time to avoid bad mental habits of adults is to prevent their development in early years.

NEW RURAL CREDIT SCHEME AT OTTAWA

OTTAWA, A second resolution favoring an extended programme of rural credits has been placed on the order paper of the house of commons by M. N. Campbell, Progressive member-elect from MacKenzie Sisk. The resolution of Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Vancouver Centre also advocating a rural credit scheme, was on the order paper a few days ago and will have precedence over the one just received by the clerk of the house from Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell's resolution would have legislation immediately introduced to establish a system embracing the principle of land banks of the United States, which system was recommended by Dr. T. D. T. in his report to the Canadian government.

CANADIAN AND UNITED STATES CHEESE

Why does Canadian cheese command a higher price in the United States than the home production? It is an American writer that puts the question. He seeks to imply that it is not at all might be supposed on account of transportation expenses but because of its greater uniformity and soundness.

To Canadians this is pleasant news and a sure encouragement to maintain quality so that the demand by consumers may increase despite the slightly higher price. After all people will always better but because it usually is. This seems to imply that it is more dependable. It is a far instance of what depends from persistent effort to produce something better than the other fellow's.

Low and to meet the demand, not only of the general market, but also of the consumer, the satisfaction of the latter being after all the real key to the situation.

THREE-CORNERED TREATY URGED BY DR. GORDON

TORONTO—The suggestion that the leaders of the three political parties in Canada sink their differences of policy and form an agreement for the carrying on of the government to the best interests of the country, was thrown out by Rev. C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor) of Winnipeg here last night.

He did not advocate the formation of a coalition, but so long as there were three groups none of which was able to dominate its fellows the leaders should make an arrangement to give essential business its proper attention.

LITTLE THRESHING REMAINS IN WEST PRACTICALLY FINISHED

WINNIPEG, There has been a week of good threshing weather throughout the west and operations have made such progress that practically all grain has now been threshed and what little remains will not take more than two or three days, it is the news contained in the final crop report of the year of the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The condition of the grain on the whole is very much better than appeared possible, after the extended period of wet weather passed through. Livestock of all kinds looks well and are going into winter quarters in good shape, with generally plenty of feed. The run of cattle and hogs on local markets was somewhat heavier than the week previous.

"THE LIMITED MAIL" by Elmer Vance, is a dramatization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Jan Gordon, whom Bob Wilson, the engineer, had known years before, has reappeared unexpectedly, and is spending the night with Caroline Dale whom Bob loves. Suddenly a neighbor appears with the information that the Limited has been wrecked, that Jim Fowler, the mail clerk has been killed and that Wilson and little Bobby Fowler are missing. Jane declares to the mystified Caroline that Bob Wilson is her husband. Then she disappears.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

There it was all in front of her—revealed. There was no doubt in Caroline's mind that Bob Wilson and Bob Snobson were one and the same person. Snobson! Caroline trembled to think of the social prestige and position of the man she loved. The proud cold blood of Puritans was there in Snobson veins; they were the Matterhorn of the country's social Alps.

When the Limited Mail westbound pulled out one sultry night two weeks or more after Bob's disappearance Caroline was a passenger crumpled in a corner of a Pullman seat a wan pathetic, hopeless figure, fleeing a past that promised no future—nothing, but dreary loneliness and always virgin heart.

CHAPTER X

When the exigencies of a mellowing physique had made the brake rods no longer safe or comfortable, out for his wanderlust and had forced Potts to write to his beloved calling as he had written it long years before to his teacher in the college and to seriously undertake retirement, he did so with no small or mean gesture. Ex-vagabond and ex-professor thought he might be. Potts would die before giving up the liberty and the philosophic calm and peace of his vacation—nature-loving. Therefore, knowing that this would in all probability remain his home for the rest of his life, Potts had looked around the vicinity that he loved best—the awe-inspiring mountain billows above Coal City. He had looked with an eye

Bob Wilson with little Bobby shared Pott's shack.

When Bob had stumbled away from the scene of the catastrophe, bearing Bobby in his arms, it was without delirium or purpose. All that night he had wandered aimlessly in his grief back into the country, then returning to the railroad after dawn of the next morning, and crossing to the west side of Granite Gorge. Not far from here Potts had found the waylaid and taken them home. Bob had not cared or dared to venture out of his hiding-place since then, but from paper brought back by Potts from his daily foraging excursions to the tracks Bob learned that he was held responsible for the wreck—learned how he had run past the River Ravine junction signal. He remembered that this was the moment of which he had dropped his watch. And he cursed the Fate that seemed to be making endless game of him.

On the same night that Caroline fared forth from Crater City with broken hopes and heart on the west-bound Limited, Bob sat up late in the doorway of the shack, watching storm cohorts marshalling behind a bulwark of clouds in the west sky and then sweeping across Nature's eternal battle field of the sky accompanied by the drumfire of the thunder's artillery and flashing of lightning.

Potts was an early retiree, as well as an early riser; he was snoring on a pinebough led in a far corner of the shack. Bobby, too, was asleep—on a grass mat before the embers of the evening fire. For Pott's construction skill was such that he had been able to round off and complete the homestead of his shack by a stone fireplace and chimney.

Bob looking at both, strangely felt no anchoring impulse to remain here tonight. The end had come for him. He had been responsible for the death of his best friend. He had undoubtedly forfeited whatever place he had attained in the affections of Caroline.

Perhaps he should have gone back and faced the music, yet it would be enduring the cross without getting the crown; he would have been willing to take any punishment did he but know that Caroline would be waiting for him at the end, that she would understand and forgive. But his own stupid indirectness and dodging had stacked the cards against him where his only purpose had been to save her the pain of naked knowledge. He had wanted to appraise her in gradual and saving way.

Then, always there was Jane! Still Jane could have been disposed of quickly enough if publicly no longer mattered—if Caroline knew. In this state and for his reasons, a divorce after all these years of residence would have been but a matter of days. Bob wondered what had happened between Jane and Caroline. Had Jane told everything? What had Caroline thought—of that, and of the present involvements? He wondered how she had borne up under the tragic news of the wreck and her personal interest in it. Without knowing so, Bob was enduring a form of nostalgia of home-sickness and loneliness for the girl who within the short space of a few days had come to mean everything in his life. He told himself grimly that all of his indecision an immediate trouble had been due to the intoxication of finding himself in love, of fear to touch upon anything that would disturb or interfere with that love. But things had certainly been swept away from his clumsy hands.

"What the hell difference does anything make?" He rose and stumbled away from the hut through the rain; in his dazed trouble-drugged mood he was under a sort of enchantment, and thought of nothing except success in the oblivion of the Gorge.

Unknown to Bobby, Bobby had been watching him for some time—pretending to sleep only as an excuse under which to work out his mischievous plan to frighten Bob. When Bob started away from the hut, Bobby decided that his opportunity had come.

Part of the "furnishings" of Pott's mansion was a square bleached bit of muslin of the size of a crib sheet. This had been allotted to Bobby in order that his gragsmat bed might be as luxurious as possible. But with childish disregard for the social standing of this vicarious bedsheet in a house of pinebough beds, he now utilized it as part of his scheme to throw a scare in to Daddy Bob. With a glowing end of stick plucked from the fireplace Bob burned two eyes in the sheet, chuckling gleefully to himself meanwhile that he draped the sheet over his head and ran out into the night to follow Bob.

The constant lightning made it easy for him to make out Bob's swinging figure, working down-hill toward the tracks, and Bobby followed as fast as his little legs could move. He began to have some doubts about his ability to overtake Daddy Bob, but he was determined to try.

Bob strode in merry, listless deliberateness toward the Gorge. The Old Witch's Nose loomed ominously above him, as it had on that other night of crisis. The Old Witch had been quiet for a long time now, and pronounced safe. It was probably by way of showing her contempt for the plane and the analyses of men; therefore, that he chose in this storm to vent in one grand, final fit of vicious temper the gnawing anger she had known through the years since the trains first began to rumble past in rupturing indifference to her hitherto sublime solitude.

Bob paused on the tracks, feeling an uncanny sense of live, cold things crawling up and down inside his spine as he heard the great devastating roar as the whole profile of the Old Witch sloughed away and crashed down into the cut—on the trestle and into the Gorge. For many minutes the avalanche carried on. When its fury had been spent, and subsided to a settling growl, Bob raced forward to see what had happened.

The final death throes of the Old Witch had been a stupendous, catastrophic one, indeed; for the tons of her granite face had smashed away the trestle, and now there was no bridge across the maddened river—nothing but torn railroads on either side and a black void between.

And even as he stood there, there came to Bob's tense senses faintly on the gale the whistle of the Limited. The ill-fated Limited, indeed; dogged by a perversity as remorseless as the one that pursued Bob in his petty human affairs; rushing again to disaster more complete and annihilating than any of the others which had threatened or occurred to it.

Bob's heart leaped to the sudden appreciation of an opportunity to pay up for the disaster, the deaths that had been his fault. He had wrecked the wound of the trestle outlined wound of the trestle outlined in the lightning was Bobby. He had lost Bob's trail, except for the knowledge that he had proceeded along the tracks. He had followed these searching—until he reached the broken edge. And just at that moment, when he had caught sight of Bob in the broken illumination of the lightning, had tripped on the sheet intended for the frightening of Bob. It was his scream in the dire and awful moments during which he struggled to regain his balance that had attracted Bob.

And even as Bob in horror looked on from the opposite cliff, Bobby's childish efforts to untangle and catch himself came to naught—and he toppled headlong into the raging whirlpools below.

Limited once, he could save it now though it would probably cost his life which mattered not at all, and but would save him the trouble.

Without hesitation he scrambled down the massed mumble of avalanche debris to the brink of the river plunged into its awful current, and swam with all his strength and heart. It was a race not only against time. Whirlpools sucked him down spun him out—jagged boulders bruised him—wind-whipped spray and rain blinded and choked him. But he made the eastern side!

He landed far below the trestle, so there still remained a hard climb back and up to the track level. And meanwhile, the Limited's whistle sounded near and clear above the elements.

He was thoroughly spent when he reached the tracks, and he collapsed involuntarily; then remained where he was for a momentary respite before starting to run down toward the Limited. The searchlight was not yet apparent; he had a brief margin of time. Then a scream from across the shattered Gorge curdled the heart-blood he was trying to compose. Bob looked aghast. There on the opposite

Without hesitation he scrambled down the massed mumble of avalanche debris to the brink of the river plunged into its awful current, and swam with all his strength and heart. It was a race not only against time. Whirlpools sucked him down spun him out—jagged boulders bruised him—wind-whipped spray and rain blinded and choked him. But he made the eastern side!

He landed far below the trestle, so there still remained a hard climb back and up to the track level. And meanwhile, the Limited's whistle sounded near and clear above the elements.

He was thoroughly spent when he reached the tracks, and he collapsed involuntarily; then remained where he was for a momentary respite before starting to run down toward the Limited. For an instant that seemed like a century Bob was literally too paralyzed to stir hand or foot. His eyes were riveted on a towhead, light against the black waters as it was borne downstream. Then Bob came to life and stepped to the trestle edge to leap into the stream again after Bobby.

A whistle, long wailing—carrying its proud demand for the safe passage of trainload of human souls. Bob panted almost in the very act of diving—w hundred or more lives rushing toward their death from behind him; one beloved little soul being swept away to death in front of him.

Which should he save?

He could only save one. Before he could flag the Limited and get back to the river, that little spot of brightness against the dark waters would be gone from his sight forever. Before he could overtake and swim back with Bobby, the Limited, and its human freight would have plunged to an all-embracing death. It was the greatest decision in his life; the most terrible dilemma a fevered brain could imagine. Weakly he shrieked a cursed prayer that this Charlie might pass from him. But there was none to take it.

Which should he save?

Somehow he made up his mind somehow he got his trembling legs into motion and started down the track toward the flying Limited—in body while his soul went out to die in the rapid's with little Bobby. From then-on, for many minutes; everything was black.

When next he drew a conscious

WAINWRIGHT, ALBERTA DECEMBER 2nd, 1925

CANADA NEEDS
SUCH SETTLERSAn example of how certain types of foreign settlers who come to Western Canada are determined that their children shall obtain a complete Canadian education, in order that they may enter fully into Canadian life as properly equipped citizens, is given in the person of Prokop Magera, a settler of many years' standing in the Bon Accord district, north of Edmonton.Magera came to the province many years ago and took up a homestead.
He has always had keen ambitions for an education for his family and as a result, to-day he has a son and a daughter attending normal school at Edmonton, a son and daughter attending high school in Edmonton and an other son preparing to take the course in agriculture this term at the Verdun School of Agriculture. In addition to this he financed the son of an old friend of his for his school and college course, and this boy as a result of the financial aid given him by the little Ruthenian homesteader has been able to complete his education and take up arts master's degree in one of the Eastern universities.And yet we are informed that not only are the quota laws rigidly enforced against such immigrants entering Canada, but that rulings on unimportant technical points are at times employed to keep them out of the country."Canada wants not only settlers of British origin, but those from other countries who are willing to work and serve the laws and customs of the land of their adoption. Experience teaches that they or their children usually become good Canadians. A new country like Canada cannot afford to be too particular about the nationality of its immigrants. This big thing is to keep out the agitators and they do not come from any particular country.
There are many trouble makers in Canada who came here from the British Isles and the United States.BUSINESS METHODS HAVE CHANGEDOld time business was built on the "Come and take it" idea. A man opened a shop and waited for customers to come. If he waited many years and gave faithful service, they got used to his presence and did come. But it took too long a time for the present hustling days.Modern business is built on the "Go get it" or soliciting system. The retaildealer buys of the wholesale concern that solicits his trade. He rarely bothers with people who don't care enough about his patronage to come around and ask for it. He feels that they are so out of line with the modern tendency, that they are not likely to be up-to-date and enterprising.
The public feels much the same way.
They usually wait to see who will solicite their trade before deciding where to buy. If a concern does not ask for their business, they are likely to conclude that it is out of the game or at least that they have forgotten its existence.Soliciting business for a retail store
from house to house might be alright
if it did not cost so much. Newspaper advertising talks to a thousand or many thousands of people while the solicitor is conversing with only one.
Also advertising is studied by the advertiser in their leisure time when they sit down to read a newspaper, so it approaches them at the psychological moment when they can be interested.

GROWTH OF INDUSTRIES

At the opening of the British Columbia Legislature recently the member for North Vancouver spoke on the progress of business in the province during the past year. He cited Workmen's Compensation Board statistics
the value of building permits for the showing an increase of 300 industries, 10,000 employees and $12,000,000 in payrolls. In seven of the largest central value of building permits for the first seven months of this year had shown a great increase over the two previous years.

C.N.R. EARNINGS INCREASE

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending Nov. 14, 1925 were $5,786,786 as compared with $4,927,588 for the same period of 1924, an increase of $859,218 or 17 per cent.WINTER CARE OF THE PREGNANT SOWAt the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe the first provision made in connection with the winter management of pregnant sows is for exercise. To compel exercise the sleeping quarters are located some 200 yds from the feeding troughs which are near the main piggery. Thus forcing the sows to walk to and fro twice a day for their feed. The lot over which the sows walk is ploughed deep in the fall to expose fresh earth of which the sows consume small amounts daily. A shed cheaply constructed from posts discarded woven wire, and straw or well-banked portable cabins prove to be excellent winter quarters. During heavy snow fall there is some dangerROYAL

when the pigs plunge through the occurs, as the sows usually have a well-earned trail made to the trough.

From 3 to 5 pounds of whole, cut or cut-chop, fed scattered on the frozen surface, or in troughs with one pound of wheat bran added per day per head makes a good grain allowance. If sows are thin in flesh the grain ration might include one-third barley until the condition is improved.
If roots, turnips or mangels, are available, 5 to 10 pounds per head might be fed each day. Alfalfa or clover hay is also a valuable roughage and will be readily eaten. It oats have been cut green, mature sows will eat the green feed with relish and benefit.
Feeder must exercise judgment and feed a ration made up of a variety of feeds and feed much or little as the condition of the sows demands in order to keep them from getting over-fat or becoming too thin. Soft corn can be fed to advantage if kept before the sows at all times. To prevent hard less pigs dissolve one ounce of potassium iodide in one gallon of water and feed one tablespoonful of the solution per sow per day for 90 days previous to farrowing.

BEARS LOSE FEAR OF MAN

BLACK and brown bears at Jasper National Park have become so tame that they frequently visit Jasper Park Lodge grounds in search of food, and, according to the report of Col. S. Maynard Jasper, Park Superintendent, become so bold that they break into cottages and camps for food and have to be destroyed. Photographs show black and brown bears at one of the construction camps at Jasper,
where they have learned to regard man as their friend rather than their enemy.—C.N.R. Photos.

Here and There

Major General Sir Fabian Ware,
vice-Chairman of the Imperial War Graves Commission, who has been visiting in Canada during October, has been recalled to England much earlier than he expected. Prior to sailing on the Canadian Pacific liner, Montclair, from Montreal, he expressed the hope that he would be able to come to Canada again next spring so that he could give Canadians in the West some idea of what the Imperial Commission is doing in caring for the graves of western youths who perished during the war.Robert L. Rice, Jr., of Boston, and J. Y. Cole, of Harvard, took big chances when they attempted to travel by canoe from Rouyn to An-gliers at the end of October. Although they started in beautiful Indian summer weather they ran within a few hours into a bad storm which filled their canoe with half melted snow and almost froze them into unconsciousness. Fortunately they arrived in the nick of time at a fire-ranger's hut where they stayed a few days until the storm abated. They were prospecting in the neighborhood and were none the worse for their perilous trip when they finally reached Montreal.Bob Shawkey, New York Yankee veteran pitcher, who organized the party of major league baseball players now hunting big game in New Brunswick, shot a moose with antlers
spanning 56 inches and having 28 points, according to word received at Fredericton, N.B. Shawkey shot his moose the first day the party spent in the woods. This information is conveyed by another party of hunters who passed the camp of the ball players at Nepisiqui Lakes. In the group are some of the best known players in the American League, Eddie Collins, Babe Ruth and Muddy Ruel being among them.The romance of a world cruise culminated in New York City recently when Dorothy Holmes O'Brien, daughter of Major-General and Mrs. John F. O'Brien of New York, married Darwin Curtis, of Chicago. The couple met for the first time a year ago on board the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France which was then making a tour of the world. It is feared they had no eyes for the world marvels which were unveiled before them on the tour, since it is stated they fell in love at first sight and could only see each other. The marriage was performed by the Rev. Father Francis
P. Duffy, chaplain of the "Fighting Sixty-ninth," a regiment commanded by the bride's father during the war.Good reading for Canadian Pacific shareholders is furnished in the September statement of gross earnings, working expenses and net profits. It has been the most favorable month for the company in a long time. The gross earnings were $18,999,071, the greatest shown in any month since October, 1921.
Operating expenses were $12,641, 452 and the difference between the two, the net profits $6,267,619, an increase of $1,719,973 over the corresponding month of last year. Net earnings for the first three quarters of this year, ending September 30th, is $1,990,039 greater than the 1924 figures, despite a decrease in gross earnings of over four and a half million dollars. This was made possible by the company's policy of rigid economy.Westinghouse Radios at Wain-

THE EXAMINER'S WEEKLY REVIEW OF PROV. MARKETS

CATTLE

BEEF—A strong demand was evident on the market at Edmonton this week for the better class of butcher cattle. Choice heavy steers $5.75@6.00; choice light $5.25; medium $3.75@4.25; common $3.00@3.50. Choice heifers $4.50@4.75; good $4.00@4.50. Choice cows $2.50@3.00; good $2.25@2.50; medium $2.00@2.25. FEEDERS STOCKERS—The market for feeders is still very active and they are selling from $3.50@3.75; stock steers $2.50@2.75; stock heifers $2.50@2.75; stock cows $2.25@2.50.

HOGS

Edmonton market also weaker. Most sales of thick smooths being made at $11.25 with 10 cent premium for bacon.

SHEEP

Edmonton inclined to be lower otherwise no change.

GRAIN

One of the wildest seasons for the present crop movement was experienced at Winnipeg on Tuesday when the market advanced over 6c. Threshing drawing to a close in most parts of Alberta and it is understood that most of the wheat is grading tough.

BUTTER—CHEESE

CREAM—No change has been made in Alberta. CREAMERY BUTTER—The prices at which the centralizers are selling to the stores in Alberta are unchanged. Shippers to the coast market however have had to cut their prices. B.C. market seems to be waiting for the arrival of the next shipment from New Zealand.

POULTRY—EGGS

EGGS—Market being supplied by storage as there are hardly any fresh eggs to be had outside of the coast pullet eggs. Some report that holdings are not clearing up as well as they should. POULTRY—Receipts are fairly liberal. Dealers are now quoting

BULLETIN FROM PROVINCIAL GOVT.

Prosperous Alberta Farmer

J. Dahl a farmer at Goral, Alberta on the Hanna-Drumheller line of the Canadian National Railway, this year threshed 3,500 bushels of wheat from 110 acres of stubble land. He also had 180 acres of summerfallow and has threshed from the 290 acres a total of 10,000 bushels of grain. It is estimated that if Mr. Dahl's half section of land were valued at half what other lands can be bought for and the price of his equipment and stock put at the same similar outfit as he is selling for he will realize from this one crop almost twice the amount of his investment. Mr. Dahl's two sons assist him in making his farming operations profitable.

CALGARY STAMPEDE PICTURE

The Western film produced by the Universal Film Corporation, starring Hoot Gibson, which is entitled "The Calgary Stampede," is now being shown throughout United States and Canada, and is resulting in some very fine publicity for the Calgary Stampede, and incidentally for Alberta. The picture is built up around the Calgary Stampede and Fifth Avenue held last year, and many fine scenes of the stampede are shown. Scenery around the Highwood River, and the Prince of Wales Ranch is also featured.

Compliments Alberta Butter

High compliments to the quality of Alberta butter and other Western butter were paid in a speech recently delivered in London, England, by A. J. Mills, chairman of a large importing firm, at a dinner given by the High Commissioner for Canada. In his speech Mr. Mills said:

"I am very pleased to see, in connection with butter, the marked development that is taking place in the North West, and the butter we are now getting from Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba is of a very fine quality well graded, and a great credit to the producer. His opinion has been confirmed in a marked way at this week's London Dairy Show, where Canadian butters, in competition with New Zealand and Australia, obtained the first three prizes in Salted, and first prize in Unsalted. It only shows what can be done in your factories, and if you wanted encouragement you have it this week."

Short Course for Creamery Workers

A three weeks' creamery course is now being offered jointly by the University and the Department of Agriculture, commencing Tuesday morning, December 1st, at 9 o'clock in Room 138 of the South Laboratory.

The course is planned for people who have already had some practical experience in creamery work intended to again return to it.

The programme will be so arranged that creamery workers who are not in a position to attend the course should notify the Department as soon as possible and bring with them their butter tins, note books and clean white overalls or aprons.

A further course will be offered, to commence Tuesday morning, January 5th, 1926.

PROVINCIAL SEED FAIR

The Alberta Provincial Seed Fair will be held in Calgary in January during the period of the Convention of the United Farmers. The dates of which are January 19, 20, and 21. It is expected that there will be a good competition again this year in all classes. Prize lists for the seed fair will be available within a few days, and may be obtained from the field crop branch of the Department of Agriculture.

CANADIAN APPLES WIN

At the Imperial Fruit Show recently held at the Crystal Palace London, England, apples from British Columbia won the first, second and third prizes for dessert apples and apple from Ontario won fourth and fifth prizes. For cooking apples, the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association won first and the Associated Fruit Growers of British Columbia second and third prizes.

TO STOCK SKEENA WITH SALMON

Constituting the largest single shipment of salmon eggs made in British Columbia, 10,000,000 sockeye eggs have left Vancouver on their way from Pemberton hatchery to the Skeena River hatchery at Lakelse. This shipment is being made to replace eggs taken from the Skeena hatchery early in October and planted in the upper reaches of the Fraser river at Quesne and Stuart Lake. The Skeena hatchery collection, normally is six weeks ahead of that of the Pemberton hatchery on the Birkenhead river and because of climatic conditions the former was used for the Stuart Lake area.

CHANGES IN THE PAS DOG DERBY

A new race will take the place of The Pas 200 mile dog derby next year. It has been announced by the Dog Derby association. The new race will only be 150 miles and will be extended over a period of three days, the teams racing 50 miles each day over a circuit course of six or eight mile laps marked out on the Saskatchewan river. In addition to the purse, a special cash prize will be given for the team making the first time each day. It is planned to hold The Pas annual bonspiel and hockey tournament on the same days, the dates not having been finally decided upon yet but will in all probability be announced very shortly. Besides the 150 miles race, a freight race of 10 miles each day for three days will be staged. One hundred pounds will be on each toboggan and only a tandem which will be used. Each team will be made up of five dogs, the winner to be decided on the best time made.

Here and There

Basking in brilliant autumn sunshine, the coast of British Columbia offers a striking contrast to the severe winter weather already making itself felt in other parts of Canada. On the coast, golf courses are crowded, the ocean is dotted with figures of bathers taking their daily dip, and pleasure craft still ply the waters.

One hundred thousand dollars' worth of Black Fox puppies were shipped to Antwerp on the Canadian Pacific liner "Moltis" recently. In specially built cages they will be conveyed by the Dominion Express across Europe to the farm in Switzerland where they will form the nucleus of a fox-breeding establishment.

Another instance of foolhardiness. A recent report from Hull is to the effect that an automobile, travelling at high speed, crashed through both gates at the Chelsea Road level crossing just as they were being lowered to stop traffic so that a light engine should pass. The automobile smashed its way over the tracks barely two feet ahead of the locomotive.

Arthur Edward Shave, in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway since August 18, 1908, when he was appointed clerk in the office of the Treasurer, has been appointed assistant treasurer of the company. Mr. Shave became assistant chief clerk in the office of the Treasurer in 1915 and was promoted Chief Clerk in 1919.

The apple is a typical Canadian fruit and among the finest grown in the Dominion. It is incomparable as a Christmas gift for friends and relatives in Great Britain. In order to facilitate shipments, the Dominion Express Company are offering special rates. Standard boxes containing about 150 and standard barrels holding about 375 will be sent from Quebec or Montreal up to the close of navigation to any station on a railroad in Great Britain or Ireland at a cost of $3 and $6, respectively.

To perpetuate the memory of the late P. Alexander Peterson, where engineers in this part of the country gather, a portrait of the famous engineer, done in oils by the late Robert Harris, Canadian artist, is to be hung in the Engineering Institute on Mansfield street. The late Mr. Peterson, former engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, took a leading part in the railway construction in Eastern Canada during the latter part of the last century.

According to a report just issued from Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters, an average of one instance of gross carelessness on the part of automobilists every seventeen days is the record during the last three years and two months in connection with level crossings in New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario and the Alberta districts. These instances number 69 from September 1, 1922, to October 31 last, or a period of 1,167 days. They resulted in injuries to 53 persons, of whom two died.

Limited Mail

breath it was to find himself on the ground in the light of the halted Limited, encircled by anxious faces of which one stood from all the rest in salutary significance.

"Caroline!"

"Bob—my darling!"
Bob did not know why she should be on her knees beside him, straining his head against her slender tremulous bosom, kissing him. He did not care why or how—he melted into the incredible miracle of it, and sobbed.

But his sobs of happiness gave way to an agonizing gasp and he rose with swift unsteadiness to his feet as he remembered. "Bobby," he choked to Caroline, "Bobby," gone—into the Gorge. Bobby, my poor dear little Bobby!"

A cry from some of the trainmen who had gone ahead to examine the full damage of the avalanche—a cry that caused the sympathetic group around Caroline and Bob to part and make way for two brakemen who staggered into group carrying Spike Nelson. And tightly clasped in Spike's one arm, was Bobby!

When Spike was revived, he whispered to Bob of what had happened. "Seen de kid's blond the watching faces, measuring his chance to make away again at the first moment, for Spike did not forget, even in this moment of repentance and service that he was a fugitive. "Seen de kid's blond noodle floating past the ledge where I bin hidin' since de other wreck when I made me getaway. So I just hooked him in, and started to climb up. Dat's what tuckered me. Only one hand dat's fit for climbing and holding someone at de same time."

And that one good hand was pressed now in the strong grateful hands of Bobb Wilson—a clasp of forgiveness and of friendship that would endure to the end of life.

"An," say, Bob—I never seen you was on dat poster. I just guessed dat because you torn it down it was—"

Bob looked candidly at Caroline and at Spike, and explained in the fullness of a sense of relief.

"That was a police broadcast for me because my father, all other methods in his search for me having failed, requested the countryside cooperation of police departments to locate me. After he disowned me, he evidently regretted it, and instituted search. But my pride was such that I'd sooner have died than gone back to a disgrace and conditional forgiveness. The rest I'll tell you some other time, Caroline."

"It won't be necessary, Bob, for I know about Jane Gordon. And I know further, something that made me wish so hard that you'd come back or at least get in touch with me. Your father had your marriage to Jane Gordon annulled—you have been free all these years—"

Bob was beginning to discredit the evidence of his ears and eyes—it all seemed such an incredible turnover from the assurances of Fate he was so accustomed to. Yet—there was no gainsaying the evidence of his lips pressed close to Caroline's. Preparations were underway now for the return of the Limited to Crater City until such time as the Gorge could be made passable. Bobby, a little bewildered and a little ill, was safe in the expert care of a doctor among the passengers.

Bob had wondered what the attitude of the trainmen toward him would be. He was set ease by their hearty expressions of gratitude and friendship. Evidently, in their minds, his former mistake had been overshadowed and explained by the magnitude of his present achievement. He was at peace then, with his comrades; with the world, and—greatest matter of all—secure in the love of Caroline. Therefore, he determined to return to Crater City on the Limited and see everything through to the happy conclusion that the good fortune of this moment seemed to predict.

He turned again to look for Spike but the tramp had disappeared, furtively—had slunk off into the refuge of the stormbound night.

"Caroline!" Bob said, sometime later when they were seated in a drawing room of the Limited, with Bobby on Caroline's lap. "I want to tell you all the details of the affair with Jane Gordon—"

Caroline interrupted him with a gesture of protestiveness. "So—after having seen and known Miss Gordon for exactly twelve hours I know even better than you do what those Spanning would be only fitting punishment for such an affair—and I'm afraid you're too big for me to spank!"

Caroline spoke lightly, but deep in her heart she knew what the whole affair had cost this scion of the county—ryeoldest and broadest bluebloods; what trailing the lace and old lavender of aristocracy in the gutter of Philistine chaff had meant when realization came to the proud and sensitive scion of the young man. Remorse for trafficked pride had driven him forth an outcast and self-appointed pariah with greater force than the commission murder would have sent the average man skulking into shadows and oblivion. She wondered a little uneasily if he would want to return to the old life now, if all was so placid and forgiven; and she wondered if he could or would take her into that setting.

Bob was studying her, and seemed to surmise her thoughts.

"Which name do you like best," he asked, "Snobson or Wilson?"

"You will always be—Bob Wilson to me," he said with a little catch in his voice.

"And I'll always remain Bob Wilson for you," he said softly. "I am on my own. I have been for five years and I've liked it better than the softness, the pampered ease, of other days. But now I have incentive and freedom for its exercise—so I shall aim for the highest. We'll make our own fortune dear heart!"

They were silent a little while over-

What the World Is Doing

(As Seen by Popular Mechanics Magazine)

A Barrel Canoe for Bathing

Riding the surf behind a speedy motorboat belongs to the thrills of many shore enthusiasts, but the more timid pleasure seekers usually find enough "kick" in the conventional forms of water sport such as rowboating and canoeing. However, rowboats and canoes are not always available, especially at some small inland lakes, and in such cases a barrel canoe of the kind shown in the drawing is a good substitute.

It consists of half a barrel, cut lengthwise, and an automobile inner tube stretched around it, as shown; these items can be obtained almost anywhere at practically no cost. Each hoop is securely nailed or screwed to the staves before sawing so that the barrel will not collapse when cut through. The ends are then cleated and all screws or nails projecting on the inside cut off and filed smooth. The inner tube is pulled down a few inches below the gunwale and inflated, which will make the craft almost uncapsizeable and unsinkable. By sitting in the bottom and paddling, the boat can be propelled along at a fairly good speed, but if the user stands up the boat will have a tendency to rock, and this adds enjoyment as he must then balance it, which is a more or less ticklish feat.

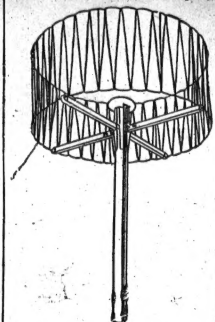

Joining Roofing Sheets

When copper and zinc-roofing sheets come in contact with each other in the open atmosphere, there is a certain amount of electrolytic action and this starts corrosion. This can readily be prevented by coating the copper and zinc with roofing cement or acid-proof paint, before the metals are joined. Of course, the connection between the two metals cannot be avoided entirely. Zinc should never be used on a roof to be covered with red cedar or redwood shingles, as acid is formed when the shingles absorb moisture and this will soon ruin the metal.

Circular Aerial Is Non-Directional and Works Inside or Outdoors

A new type of antenna, which, owing to its circular shape, is claimed to be non-directional and to result in equally good reception from all points of the compass, has appeared in England. It is designed for either indoor or outdoor use. It consists of two rings supported on an upright by means of two crossarms. Special braided copper-nylon tape is wound from one ring to the other in such a manner that practically the entire surface is exposed to the incoming radio waves. It is claimed that this type of aerial will increase the range of many receivers.

Half of Nation's Electric Power

Now Used in Homes

Although the first incandescent lamp was not marketed until about 1880, the annual sale of electric appliances for the home is now estimated to total more than $1,000,000,000, according to a report of the National Bank of Commerce in New York. The total sales of electricity for residential, industrial and public-utility use for 1924 amounted to approximately $1,335,100,000, a sum $65,100,000 greater than that of the preceding year.

Substitute for Binding Pole

Instead of carrying a cumbersome binding pole when hauling hay or fodder, a Wisconsin farmer uses a cable and winches as a substitute. The rope is provided with a hook at each end and is securely attached, at its center, to the winch. This is made from a length of gas pipe and is slipped through holes drilled in the front ladder of the wagon, a locking bar being also provided, as indicated, to keep the crank from turning after the rope has been drawn up tight. In use, the rope is brought over the load in the usual way, the hooks being fastened to the wagon frame at the rear, and the winch then used to tighten the rope over the load.

"I'll bite," she said, shocked.

"It makes a hell of a difference!" he exulted, smothering her.

THE END

RECORD CAR LOADINGS

A two year record in car loadings on Canadian railways was broken in the week ended Nov. 7, when a total of 77,370 cars were loaded. This figure surpasses the 1924 peak of 27,600 cars and was greater by 773 cars than the 1925 record established in the week ended Oct. 17. The cumulative total for 1925 for the first time passed the corresponding 1924 total, the increase now being 4,594 cars, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

NEW OIL-ELECTRIC CAR ON CANADIAN NATIONAL

ARRIVAL in Western Canada of the new Canadian National Railway oil-electric car on an endurance run from Montreal to Vancouver under its own power, and its subsequent return to Edmonton where it was placed in service on the Edmonton-Vermilion run, replacing a mixed train service, has created much interest among railway men and the traveling public generally. The new car, shown above, carries approximately 60 passengers, in addition to baggage and express, and made a record run to Vancouver. Other cars of similar type, and also of an articulated type, carrying 180 passengers, have been placed in service in Eastern Canada, where they are giving excellent service at reduced operating cost. More cars are now being built and others are to be sent to the west for branch-line service. The car operates on electricity, generated by a fuel oil engine of airplane type, and the working out of this method of traction by Canadian National engineers gives promise of great reduction in fuel and operating costs. Each of these cars is capable of handling a trailer when necessary.

Handsomen Cup for C. P. Liner Making World Cruise

1. Cup being placed in niche in library of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France. 2. Cup being presented, left tonight, to S. Quatremaire, (passenger) Capt. E. Griffiths, R.N.R. (Commander). 3. This photo shows the Cup presented to the ship and the Republic to Commander Griffiths.

On the cup is engraved: Presented to the Canadian Pacific R.M.S. "Empress of France" by passengers on the 1925 Cruise in appreciation of a remarkably successful voyage of 34,000 miles. Commander E. Griffiths, R.N.R.

Inscribed on the Replica presented to the Commander reads as follows: This Replica presented to Commander E. Griffiths, R.N.R., R.M.S. "Empress of France" by passengers on the 1925 Cruise in appreciation of his skill, tact and unflinching courtesy throughout a most wonderfully successful voyage of 34,000 miles.

With even greater comforts on board the palatial ocean liners than any to be had on shore it is not surprising that cruising has seized the popular fancy. This year many will avail themselves of the opportunity of making the Round the World Cruise on the Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Scotland.

The liner leaves New York on December 3 and returns April 10 via the Panama Canal after visiting over 20 countries en route, including 26 ports of call, and arriving in the Holyland on Christmas Day. Cruise members proceed to Jerusalem and Bethlehem by train after disembarking at Haifa. After a day and half visiting scenes made memorable by the life of Our Saviour the party goes on to Cairo by train.

At Southampton, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France was presented with a silver cup 27 inches high weighing 167 ounces on Friday, October 30 by C. S. Quatremaire on behalf of the Round the World Cruising Party on this ship during the winter 1924-25. The cup is a copy of the Gold Estimote Cordiale Cup presented to France by His Majesty King Edward VII and was given as a token of their appreciation for the splendid voyage they had enjoyed on their long cruise. The Cup, with suitable inscription, was placed in a niche in the library of the ship and a replica of it was presented to the Commander of the ship, E. Griffiths, R.N.R.

This memento has a specially high value in the eyes of passengers who had made a three months voyage of 34,000 miles under their care. The inscriptions speak for themselves.
